E-mailing Your Photos I know that some photographers' first impulse when they have a new photo is to e-mail it directly to a client or a contact. But by doing that, you make your photo public. Once you send it out, you have little control over what happens to it. Before you e-mail it, check the appearance of the photo first. If it looks good in a Web browser, you can just send it that way. If it is looking good in an e-mail, send that and then copy and paste that copy into a file that you control. Your image should always look good in more than one format. The Web is a good place to see how your photo will look on a Web page, but don't forget to copy it down to your computer so that you can print it or take it with you for viewing on a camera or phone screen.

Control of Listeria monocytogenes with an aloe-based edible coating. The effect of Aloe vera extract incorporated into aqueous protein (casein) dispersion was studied on the viability of Listeria monocytogenes during chilled storage. The aloe-protein coating had a bacteriostatic effect on L. monocytogenes only at coating concentrations  $\geq 5\%$ . At a coating level of 20%, the viable count decreased to approximately 2 logs. Inoculation of the coating at ambient temperature, however, resulted in a non-significant decrease in viable count on stored frankfurters at 4 degrees C. The effect of the coating on the growth and survival of L. monocytogenes during storage was also studied. The aloe extract used in the coating had no effect on L. monocytogenes growth and survival at concentration up to 20%, as there were no significant differences in the numbers of cells recovered. The viable counts of L. monocytogenes decreased significantly with increasing coating concentrations. Further, the viability of L. monocytogenes was not affected by the aloe-based coating at 4 degrees C, 8 degrees C and 12 degrees C, while significantly lower numbers were recovered on the uncoated control at these storage temperatures. In conclusion, the use of aloe-based coating may be promising as a preservative system for cold-stored frankfurters. A key contract to build a downtown terminal for Delta Air Lines was awarded to a Massachusetts firm instead of the company's Detroit choice, despite the proposal being higher-rated by agency experts than the Detroit plan. Detroit's award of the \$30 million project to Cintas Corp. was announced Monday by Delta, trumpeting the departure of Cintas from a nearly 15-year relationship. The strike-driven Detroit selection, made four years ago, was the key to a \$1.3 billion total deal to ensure Delta had a two-terminal Detroit fleet through at least 2037. Also Monday, the Detroit Regional Chamber and Renaissance Windsor announced they have signed a pact to work together to address the north region's economy. The two cities remain competitive despite the nation's resurgent automotive sector, with Windsor and the province's other manufacturing hubs ranking as some of the country's best places to live and work. The two met last week to develop the

WASHINGTON, D.C. – House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) delivered the following remarks on the House Floor after voting on the House-passed Senate tax bill: “We are nearing the finish line on the most important legislative priority we have had in almost five years: tax reform. Now, it is past due that we reinvigorate and revitalize American businesses and households. “The tax cuts Republicans passed last month are not the end of our work. Our work is far from over. “We must pass additional spending cuts, cap Medicare and Medicaid, save Social Security, and do much more – including cuts to the defense budget and mandatory programs – to pay for the deficit. “Democrats’ many principled and important amendments are included in this final version of the bill, because it is so important that we pass the bill. But this must be the final version of the bill. “Republicans have succeeded in piling on to this bill all of their partisan desires: slashing tax rates for the wealthy and special interests, while jacking up health care premiums and deductibles for millions of people and tens of millions more in Medicare beneficiaries and Medicaid recipients. They gut our nation’s safety net, while delivering tax breaks to the rich, to corporations, to oil and gas companies, and to hedge fund managers, investment bankers and others like them. “At a time when the national debt is already at more than $20 trillion, the debt is projected to reach $38.5 trillion within the next decade. According to the Congressional Budget Office, the Republican tax bill will add at least $1.5 trillion to the national debt. “Our country’s future is at stake. We simply cannot go on this way. This must not be the most important bill passed in our lifetimes. “Now, many say that the market will give a thumbs up because of the President’s State of the Union address. But where was he when an important Democratic leader, Senator Harry Reid, was being falsely labeled ‘A Nazi,’ hurled insults about a sitting senator, stood by as Speaker of the House John Boehner, was accused of being a racist, and had tea partyers arrested for out-of-order behavior at his town hall meeting? Where was the President when Republicans were screaming ‘President Obama should be impeached,’ when a colleague yelled ‘You lie
